Police identify 15-month-old Radcliff shooting victim

No charges filed in toddler's death

By SARAH BENNETT
sbennett@thenewsenterprise.com

Police in Radcliff are trying to piece together the events that led to a 15-month-old toddler being accidentally shot by her brother Sunday afternoon.

On Monday, Bryce Shumate, public information officer for Radcliff Police Department, identified the victim as Bella San Martin.

Bella was the daughter of Angelica and Christopher San Martin, who is stationed at Fort Knox, Shumate said.

Services for Bella will be in California, Shumate said.

Radcliff officers responded around 3:30 p.m. Sunday to a call regarding an "accidental shooting" at 108 Keith Court. On Monday, Shumate confirmed the parents were home at the time of the shooting.

In a statement released Sunday, Shumate said an initial investigation revealed the 3-year-old found a pistol in the home and was playing with it when it discharged.

The gun in question is a .40-caliber semiautomatic, he said Monday.

It was not a stolen weapon, Shumate said. However, who owned it and how it came to be in the 3-year-old brother's hands remain part of the investigation.

Asked if parents or the gun's owner could face criminal charges, he said, "I think it's a little premature in the investigation to answer that question."

"A firearm in the home needs to be placed as high up as possible," Shumate said.

Joshua Hines sentenced to 35 years

Man killed his neighbor,
Toni M. Ballard, in April 2011

By SARAH BENNETT
sbennett@thenewsenterprise.com

Joshua Hines had decided April 7, 2011, was the day he was going to kill himself.

He went to see his neighbor, Toni M. Ballard, to use a phone to call an ambulance because he didn't want his father to see his dead body.

Ballard let Hines inside her Bardstown Road home and that's when the 23-year-old's plan fell apart. The gun Hines had placed in his waistband fell down his pants leg. When Ballard saw it, she screamed.

Panicked, Hines fired three rounds at his neighbor. Ballard, 36, was dead by the time Kentucky State Police arrived at her home in Elizabethtown.

On Monday, Hardin Circuit Court Judge Kelly Mark Easton sentenced Hines to 35 years in prison for the shooting death.

Bill Swope long has considered the free museum that has grown out of his personal car collection to be a gift back to the people who have supported the Swope Family of Dealerships for 60 years.

"The cars in a sense, in a very real sense, belong to the community," he said.

Swope's Cars of Yesteryear Museum will host a grand reopening at 5:45 p.m. May 10 with a ribbon-cutting.

The event is free and open to the community and includes tours, appetizers and a drawing for a diamond

Beshear signs bill into law at Central Hardin

By KELLY CANTRALL
kcantrall@thenewsenterprise.com

Dennis Parrett's vision to give his daughter a high school diploma came true Monday, as the bill he created to do so became law.

Special needs students taking an alternative curriculum in high school now can receive diplomas for their efforts, thanks to a Kentucky law signed by Gov. Steve Beshear. Residents gathered at Central Hardin High School to watch Beshear sign the law and students in the high school's special education department looked on as a bill that could change the outcome of their high school careers was signed.

Radcliff council hears first reading on new alcohol policy

Second reading scheduled for May 15

By MARTY FINLEY
 mfinley@thenewsenterprise.com

Radcliff City Council on Monday heard the first reading of an ordinance modifying the city's policies on alcohol at Colvin Community Center and City Park North.

The ordinance as proposed would authorize the use of alcohol for special events and private parties at Colvin Community Center and city-sponsored events at Radcliff City Park North.

Mayor J.J. Duvall said alcohol use at all other city parks is prohibited under the plan.

For Colvin, alcohol use will only be permitted if the entire facility is rented out and the renter adheres to all rental requirements.

Alcohol can only be given away at Colvin if the renter is hosting a private party, such as a family reunion, birthday party or wedding reception, said City Attorney Michael Pike.

"You can't just have someone come in off the street," Pike said.

If a renter desires to sell alcohol at the center, those alcohol sales must be managed and distributed by a local- and state-licensed caterer, according to the ordinance. Proof also must be provided to the city that those who sell and serve alcoholic beverages have received the necessary training and are "age appropriate."

Also, those who rent the facility and serve alcohol cannot charge an admission fee or cover charge unless the renter is a non profit organization or tax exempt agency, the ordinance states.

Prior to the event, the renter must provide a waiver of liability and indemnification for the city's benefit and liability insurance coverage with the city listed as the insured entity.

Pike said the insurance mandate is an absolute must if the city plans to allow alcohol on public property because it offers protection if someone is hurt at a party or function and decides to sue.

The ordinance also requires a renter to provide a security plan as well as an alcoholic beverage sale and serving plan at least 60 days before the event so the plans can be reviewed and approved by the city.

The council inquired about what forms and formats the city would provide for the plans. Pike said the city could generate its own forms for renters to follow.

At Radcliff City Park North, only malt-based alcoholic beverages may be served at events sponsored or organized by the city. The sale, possession, consumption, location and quantities of alcohol sold at the park would be regulated by the city. Only state and locally licensed caterers would be allowed to sell alcohol during city-sponsored events once the city finishes a sealed bidding process to choose a caterer, according to the ordinance.

Pike said the city's ordinance is flexible and some trial and error is needed to flesh out the new policy.

"If there is something we need to change over time, we can do it," he said. "We can tweak it."

The second reading and adoption of the ordinance is scheduled during the council's next voting meeting on May 15.

National Day of Prayer to be observed locally

By AMBER COULTER
 acoulter@thenewsenterprise.com

Area believers are encouraged to pray together Thursday for their communities.

Prayer gatherings in Elizabethtown and Radcliff have been organized to honor the National Day of Prayer, which is observed nationally on the first Thursday of May each year. The day is annually proclaimed by Congress and the president as being acknowledged as a day during which citizens are encouraged to join their prayers for their communities and nation.

The Radcliff North Hardin Ministerial Association has organized a prayer event at 5:30 p.m. in front of Radcliff City Hall on Freedoms Way. The prayer meeting will take place at the Colvin Community Center on Freedoms Way if there is inclement weather.

Gloria Fite, secretary and treasurer of the ministerial association and pastor of All Nations Worship Ministries in Radcliff, said such prayer gatherings are important because prayer is a form of communication in which many people can join.

Prayers Thursday will ask that God's will be done in families, children, the nation and the community, Fite said.

"We're just trying to get people to come together to pray for our community, our city, our state and our leaders," she said. "We're looking to unify ourselves and to bring this community together."

Some Radcliff City Council members plan to join in the prayer event, Fite said.

"We're just asking everyone to come out and uplift our city," she said.

An Elizabethtown couple, Diana and Tom Bissig, has organized a similar event in Elizabethtown at noon around the flagpole outside H.B. Fife courthouse.

The Bissigs are Hardin County coordinators for the National Day of Prayer.

Diana Bissig said she and her husband have prayed often as they have raised five children, and they have observed its power.

"My husband and I believe that prayer changes things," she said. The gathering is for believers of all political persuasions, Bissig said.

"Our nation, it needs prayer," she said. "The Bible commands us to pray for our leadership."

The main goal is to pray for every person in the city, county and state, Bissig said.

"We want to walk away with hope in our hearts that the Lord has heard us, and he will help those in need," she said.

Jeff Noel, pastor of Grace Heartland Church in Elizabethtown, is on the National Day of Prayer Task Force and is planned to be among those praying on the steps of the nation's capital Thursday.

More cowbell? Blue Oyster Cult to open for REO Speedwagon, Styx

Classic rock group replaces Ted Nugent

By MARTY FINLEY
mfinley@thenewsenterprise.com

Another classic rock giant has been added to the Fort Knox Summer Concert at Godman Army Airfield.

The post on Monday announced Blue Oyster Cult will open for co-headliners REO Speedwagon and Styx on June 23.

Tickets are on sale for $30 before the day of the concert and $35 at the gate and can be purchased by calling the Information, Ticketing and Registration office at (502) 624-5030 or logging on to www.ticketmaster.com.

Known for hits such as "Don't Fear The Reaper," "Burnin' For You" and "Godzilla," Blue Oyster Cult is a great addition to an already stellar classic rock lineup, said Event Coordinator Mark Wicker.

"We're committed to bringing another quality show to Fort Knox and surrounding communities," Wicker said.

In addition to Blue Oyster Cult's chart-topping singles, "Don't Fear The Reaper" gained more pop culture acclaim after the song was lampooned in a Saturday Night Live sketch comedy skit starring actors Will Ferrell and Christopher Walken.

Blue Oyster Cult fills the opening slot vacated by rocker Ted Nugent after Fort Knox pulled him from the concert following remarks he made about President Barack Obama. Nugent said he would end up dead or in jail if Obama won re-election this year.

Nugent last week said he was insulted by the Fort

Knox cancelation and said his comments should not have been taken as a threat to anyone.

Wicker declined to comment further on the Nugent cancelation and said the lineup change has not impacted ticket sales.

"We never did stop (selling)," he said. "Even with the lineup change, we continued to sell tickets."

Wicker said Godman Army Airfield has the capacity to hold 11,000 concertgoers.

Marty Finley can be reached at (270) 505-1762.

Battle of Eddyville brought to life by re-enactors

The Associated Press

EDDYVILLE — For the first time in five years, re-enactors gathered this weekend in western Kentucky to recreate the Civil War's Battle of Eddyville.

The Paducah Sun reported the encampment over the weekend included cannons booming, rifles firing and bayonets glinting. Lake Barkley Tourism Commission director Beau Choate said the re-enactment was brought back because it makes history tangible. Choate says organizers hope to make it an annual event again.

On Sunday, Tennessee Valley Battalion re-enactors helped recreate the Battle of Eddyville, which is the last known skirmish between Union and Confederate soldiers in Kentucky.

Robert Ward, a colonel with the Tennessee Valley Battalion, said re-enactors help portray a vivid historical picture and keep the legacy of the war pertinent.

Online retailer to move its HQ to Louisville

Relocation could bring 600 new jobs

Kentucky Press News Service

LOUISVILLE — Louisville leaders and company officials Monday announced CafePress Inc. will move its global headquarters to Louisville, where it already has a 140,000-square-foot fulfillment center on Riverport Drive.

The company plans to expand the existing operation by another 185,000 square feet to accommodate the growth, which will create 592 new full-time jobs as well as an investment of more than $16.5 million.

CafePress is an exciting company and has enjoyed tremendous success because of its innovative business model and product line, Gov. Steve Beshear said in a news release.

Founded in 1999, CafePress Inc. empowers individuals, groups, businesses and organizations to create, buy and sell customized and personalized products using the company's innovative and proprietary print-on-demand services and e-commerce platform. Today CafePress Inc. owns a portfolio of six premium brands including its flagship website, CafePress.com.

"Today marks a continued commitment to our relationship with the great state of Kentucky as we bring our global headquarters to Louisville and cement the path to new jobs," said CafePress CEO Bob Marino. "And, this move makes CafePress Inc. the first publicly traded e-commerce company to be headquartered in the Commonwealth."

To encourage the expansion and headquarters relocation in Louisville, the Kentucky Economic Development Finance Authority preliminarily approved CafePress for tax incentives up to $10 million through the Kentucky Business Investment program.

"CafePress' decision to have its global headquarters to join its Louisville fulfillment center demonstrates that we are a good place to do business and have a high quality of life," Louisville Mayor Greg Fischer said. "Adding nearly 600 jobs to our local economy will be a big win for our community as well as for the company, and I look forward to working with CafePress in their new home."

Bowling Green man accused of kidnapping

By JUSTIN STORY
The Daily News

A Bowling Green man is charged with kidnapping and several other offenses and faces a potential life sentence in prison.

Jackie Dale Harris II, 31, was indicted Wednesday by a Warren County grand jury on charges of kidnapping, first-degree burglary, first-degree fleeing or evading police (on foot), tampering with a witness, fourth-degree assault (domestic violence), resisting arrest, terroristic threatening, theft by unlawful taking of property valued at less than $500, second-degree disorderly conduct and second-degree persistent felony offender.

According to an indictment, the charges against Harris stem from a March 25 domestic incident with Penni Ward in which police say Harris unlawfully entered her residence and punched and kicked her.

Warren County Commonwealth's Attorney Chris Cohron said the Warren County Sheriff's Office responded to a 911 call and found Harris with Ward at the residence.

"After an altercation with sheriff's deputies, he was placed into custody," Cohron said.

According to a domestic abuse report filed by Deputy Jason Richerson of the sheriff's office, deputies were notified at 3:36 a.m. March 25 of a possible incident in progress at Ward's residence.

"I was aware of a history of domestic violence recently where Penni Ward was assaulted and her life was threatened," Richerson wrote.

An investigation by deputies determined that forced entry had been attempted at the front door of Ward's residence.

Richerson kicked in the rear door and deputies found Harris and Ward, described in the report as Harris' girlfriend, in bed in the back bedroom, according to the report.

Ward told investigators she was asleep around 2 a.m. that evening when Harris woke her up and dragged her out of bed by her hair.

Police said Harris broke Ward's cellphone to prevent her from calling 911.

Ward eventually used a home phone to call 911, after which Harris is accused of dragging her by her hair to the garage and forcing her into a van.

Newspaper in dispute with state over child records

The Associated Press

LEXINGTON — A Kentucky newspaper is in another dispute with state officials over whether records about a child's death should be released to the public.

The Lexington Herald-Leader reported state officials denied its request for child-protection records in the 2009 death of 7-month-old Ariel Allison.

The girl's father, Jesse Allison, is charged in Caldwell County with murder in her death. He maintains the death was accidental.

The newspaper requested records in March from the Cabinet for Health and Family Services, but officials responded by saying the records are exempt because child protection workers never determined her death was caused by neglect or abuse.

The Lexington Herald-Leader and The Courier-Journal have been involved in a lengthy legal dispute with the cabinet over records involving child deaths or near deaths stemming from abuse or neglect.

A judge ordered the state to release documents last year and Gov. Steve Beshear said his administration would comply with the order.

However, state officials say the order doesn't apply to this case.

"Until the criminal charge is litigated there is no finding of abuse or neglect that would qualify it as a case which the cabinet may release," general counsel Christina Heavrin wrote in response to the newspaper's request for the records.

However, the Herald-Leader said the cabinet's two-page internal review of Ariel's death, which was released, said the agency decided to file in court a "physical-abuse petition on the father regarding this child," meaning that Jesse Allison would have to answer to the allegation in court.

"The cabinet is splitting a hair that is not authorized by the law," said Kif Skidmore, an attorney representing the Herald-Leader. "The decision to file a physical-abuse petition is sufficient to make the records public — there is simply no requirement of a criminal conviction."

Beshear's spokeswoman, Kerri Richardson, defended the decision not to release more information about the case.

"The cabinet continues to comply with the directive from the governor, and they continue to release records weekly. However, in this case, a criminal case is pending in the courts, which exempts those records from release under the Open Records Act," Richardson said.

Allison's second trial on the charge is set to begin May 29. His first trial last year ended with a hung jury.

Man finds human skull in road ditch

The Associated Press

FLEMINGSBURG — An eastern Kentucky man has found a human skull as he cleaned out a road ditch in front of his home.

WKYT-TV in Lexington reported the discovery came Friday as Greg Myers did yard work where he lives in Fleming County. He has lived in the house for 12 years.

Kentucky State Police sent the skull to Frankfort for the state medical examiner to investigate. Police said they did not find any other bones and did not yet know whether the skull was from a male or a female.

BESHEAR: Law means diploma can be listed on resumes

The bill was created by Parrett, a Democratic State Senator from the 10th District, and received unanimous support in both chambers of the General Assembly. Parrett was prompted to create the bill after learning his daughter, Kristen, a junior at Central Hardin, would receive a certificate of completion upon graduation instead of a diploma.

Kristen testified before the Senate Education Committee and sat next to Beshear as he signed the bill that allows her to receive a diploma.

She later said the new law meant a lot to her and that it would allow her to include a high school diploma on resumes when applying for jobs. She said she appreciated the fact that “the people came out and supported this day.”

Beshear told those assembled he was excited to be at the school to sign the bill into law.

“Students with special needs have the same desire to earn a high school diploma as other students,” he said.

Parrett said his daughter was upset she couldn’t be at the Senate’s passage of the bill, but was determined to witness its passage into law.

Beshear high-fives Kristen Parrett on Monday after learning she is left handed like himself before signing a bill into law.

“When that governor signs it,” Parrett recounted Kristen telling him, “I’m going to be there.”

Parrett said the bill also meant a lot to other families and students.

“It’s an important day for our family but it’s much more than that,” he said.

HINES: Ballard’s family present for sentencing

Now 24, Hines kept his head down and was silent throughout the majority of his two-hour sentencing. The only time he spoke was when he stood up and faced Ballard’s family to read a statement.

Hines told the victim’s family he has only a “vague recollection” of the events, but he knows he killed an innocent woman who did not deserve to die. The defendant said he deserves to be in hell and does not expect Ballard’s family to forgive him.

“My dreams are filled with haunting images of Ms. Ballard,” he said.

Days after the shooting, former KSP Trooper Bruce Reeves said Hines told police he didn’t know Ballard and offered no reason for why he shot her.

However, witnesses and defense attorneys spent a little more than an hour Monday fleshing out why.

The defense called Hines’ brother, a former youth minister, a private investigator and Dr. Timothy Carbary, a psychiatrist who testified during a previous court proceeding, during the mitigation phase of the sentencing. Each of the four witnesses spoke of Hines history of mental illness, which went undiagnosed prior to the shooting.

Carbary, employed at the Department of Behavioral Health at Blanchfield Army Hospital in Fort Campbell, previously found Hines competent to stand trial but advised the 24-year-old suffered from a bipolar-type schizoaffective disorder, a mental disorder that could produce psychotic-type symptoms under stress.

On Monday, Carbary said he did not believe Hines could be held criminally responsible as he was “deranged” and “dissociated” at the time of the shooting and would not have been able to differentiate right from wrong.

Previous testimony from Carbary and Dr. Amy Trivette with Kentucky Correctional Psychiatric Center in La-Grange revealed Hines has a history of depression, which reached a peak in the days leading up to the shooting.

Assistant Commonwealth’s Attorney Heather Paynter said she could not believe the idea Hines was dissociative or not able to tell right from wrong as he was able to repeat in detail what he did the day of the shooting.

“I reject that, your honor,” Paynter said.

Before concluding the sentencing, Easton ultimately said he did not accept Hines’ mental health as an excuse for what happened.

During cross examination, the prosecutor repeated the events as Hines reported them to Trivette two months after the shooting during his evaluation at KCPC.

According to Paynter, Hines recalled his father leaving to go fishing and taking the phone with him. He remembered having trouble loading the gun and walking to Ballard’s home to use the phone to call the ambulance.

He purposefully chose Ballard because he didn’t know her, and he was afraid the other neighbors would attempt to call his father to stop him from committing suicide.

When Ballard saw the gun fall down Hines’ pant leg, he remembered she looked at him “weird.” She screamed, and he was afraid he was going to get into trouble. Then he shot her.

According to Paynter, his 911 call was two minutes long during which he told the dispatcher he just shot his neighbor and needed someone to come take him to jail.

“He can’t go on with his plan, so he kills her instead?” Paynter said. “There’s no rhyme or reason for that. This defendant knew what he was doing that day.”

Two of Ballard’s siblings and her aunt made statements Monday. Though each one looked directly at Hines as they spoke, the defendant never returned the contact.

“I don’t accept his apology,” said Linda Greenwell, Ballard’s aunt. “I think he’s an evil man. I don’t think he’s sick.”

“I don’t get it,” Ballard’s sister Connie Miller said. “She did nothing to you. I don’t understand.”

Hines will not be eligible for parole until after serving 85 percent of his 35-year sentence – nearly 30 years.

The defense asked the judge to include a request for mental health treatment in his order. Easton said he would make that notation.

Civil War event has great potential

ISSUE: Sesquicentennial eventOUR VIEW: Good start, think bigger

Long before downtown Elizabethtown had a Justice Center, paved roads or electricity, the area was full of Civil War action.

Last month's sesquicentennial event attracted plenty of attention downtown as area residents re-enacted — at least for a few hours — what life was like in this town in celebration of the 150th anniversary of the Civil War.

Streets were lined with people who were able to step back in time and get a slight taste of what life here once was like.

Cannon blasts, musket rounds and Confederate commanders were all part of the display on a spring Friday night. The event, sponsored by the Brown-Pusey House, Elizabethtown-Hardin County Heritage Council, Hardin County History Museum and Morrison Masonic Lodge, was a resounding success.

While it is always good to look to our future, we should never lose sight of our past as our vibrant community was shaped years ago.

As event starts go, this one was a winner.

Only those involved on the inside of a project like this one truly understand the effort needed to ensure everything is done right and that it is an event that reflects what life in 1862 truly was like.

With a successful debut, organizers should broaden the scope and capitalize on the tourism benefits of staging an event like this one. Maybe even tie it into others Civil War themed-events from areas like Fort Duffield, Munfordville, Hodgenville and Bardstown.

Hosting a Civil War re-enactment, especially in a place like Hardin County, could become a destination for the region. Possibly think of two performances on a Friday night and Saturday morning.

How many of us really knew that during the Civil War, the Confederate Army launched a looting and ransacking attack on the area? You did if you attended the sesquicentennial performance.

It was a history lesson come to life that our area needs to embrace as an annual event.

East Hardin band marches on

On June 16, all members and supporters of the East Hardin High School Rebeleer Band are invited to attend a reunion honoring 28 years of the band's history.

Life has taken us in many different directions, but our experiences in the high school band created a special bond, and this event is a unique opportunity to share memories and to honor former band directors, including the late Chuck Campbell. A silent auction of many of Mr. Campbell's keepsakes from his years as East Hardin's band director will be held, with proceeds going to the American Cancer Society.

Everyone is encouraged to bring mementos such as scrapbooks, old contest audio or video tapes and photos, so we can talk, eat or dance the night away.

The East Hardin Rebeleer Band Reunion will be held at Pritchard Community Center from 4 to 11 p.m., with dinner at 6 p.m. Please confirm your attendance and submit payment by May 10 by sending $20 per person to Rebeleer Reunion, P.O. Box 30, Gledale, KY 42740. See www.rebelers.com for details and mail questions to rebeleers@gmail.com or call 737-2118. ## In this abduction story, only the roast beef disappears

I know how easy it is for a child to be abducted. That's because when I was a child, I invited a stranger into my home.

It was 1963, I was in second grade and Mom was at a PTA meeting. I had been allowed to come home and stay by myself rather than wait at school until the meeting was over.

That's when the stranger rang the doorbell.

I shouldn't have opened the door, but I did, anyway. I shouldn't have answered his question about where my parents were, telling him I was home alone, but I did, anyway. And I shouldn't have invited him in when he flipped a shiny silver dollar in the air, promising me it would be mine if I would let him in and give him something to eat. I shouldn't have.

But I did, anyway.

And in an instant, I, a child, was alone in my house with a complete stranger.

I suppose there are as many ways to abduct a child as there are children to be abducted. In the U.S. about 800,000 children are reported at least temporarily missing every year, although only about 115 are victims of what is viewed as stranger abductions.

Being vigilant about the potential for child abductions is now woven into our social fabric: We alert our children to "stranger danger;" we know Amber Alert; we try to teach our children how to respond to a potentially dangerous situation; we have a communal fear of a child being taken.

We no longer raise our children in an age of innocence.

Much of our safeguards against child abductions are a result of the ones who didn't make it back home.

Etan Patz never returned after he was allowed for the first time to walk by himself to school in the quiet, supposedly safe SoHo neighborhood of Manhattan 33 years ago. His became one of the first cases to utilize technology and media to try and find a missing child. Not only were flyers distributed on telephone poles throughout New York City, but Etan's face was on milk cartons across in America.

Community awareness and technological advances have been successful.

Ernie Allen, president of the National Center for Missing & Exploited

Children has noted, "More than 99 percent of children reported missing in America in recent years have come home alive."

Technology has created other possibilities as well. Steve Carter, a 35-year-old software salesman, found himself on a missing children's website. Last year, Steve, a resident of Philadelphia, was watching CNN's coverage of Carlina White, an Atlanta woman who discovered she had been kidnapped from a Harlem hospital in 1987 by a woman posing as a nurse. A website for missing children helped clue Carlina in to her missing past.

That story made Steve even more curious about his own biological family, so on a hunch, he clicked on www.missingkids.com. He found an age-progression image of himself. With the exception of the haircut, the resemblance was remarkable. His biological mom apparently had given him to a Honolulu orphanage, changing Steve's name. Now, he has been reunited with his biological father.

Having eaten the roast beef sandwich I had prepared from Sunday's lunch, the stranger in my house paused as if he were a connoisseur of fine desserts, liking his lips, anticipating an after dinner treat.

I gazed at the floor. I still can feel his eerie stare like the hot breath on the neck of an animal being pursued by a predator.

Then, as if he sensed my apprehension, he suddenly became a salesman and pulling out a picture album, he opened it and began showing portraits of children, picture after picture of boys and girls. They looked like pictures of children suitable for a church pictorial directory.

But they weren't.

"Would you like to go with me and have your picture made?" he asked. Having my picture made didn't sound the least bit appealing and besides, I told the stranger, my mom would be home any minute and he could ask her.

"You don't have to ask her," the stranger whispered and in the next breath, he asked to use the phone.

He made a call to a hotel, which I later learned carried the seediest of reputations in our town.

I don't recall the details of his short conversation, but he abruptly hung up the phone with declaration and announced, "Sorry, kid, I've got to go."

And he hustled out the door, without a mention of the silver dollar.

Later that afternoon, Mom was interrogating my lovers into the museum.

The changes will allow the museum to hold more than 40 cars, about 10 more than its previous capacity.

Museum hostess Sue Marski said the museum easily can draw 50 visitors on a summer day.

The museum wasn't closed during renovation, but the number of visitors dropped because many assumed the construction would mean it would be closed, she said.

Marski expects to lead tours of large crowds after the grand reopening.

Swope said the construction will improve the museum's look.

"It's going to be bigger, more beautiful," he said.

Swope said virtually everyone has some interest in cars and memories of the cars they learned to drive in, the cars they took on their first dates and the cars they had when they got married.

That's part of what draws visitors from nearly every state and some foreign countries each year, he said.

"Everybody has a car story," he said. "There's a lot of reminiscing."

Swope said he didn't realize in 1952 when he bought a 1922 Dodge touring car to display in front of his first dealership that he was starting a collection. He now owns more than 60 historic cars.

In 1999, he decided to share those vehicles with the public for free.

"I thought I would just like to build a kind of legacy and give it to the people who have been so good to us," he said.

Susan Gifford, director of marketing and quality initiatives for the Swope Family of Dealerships, said the museum is a draw to the community because it displays so many impressive cars for free and is well-known among antique car lovers.

"They're his precious metals. This is his baby," she said, gesturing around the museum.

Gifford said Swope has specific memories about each car in his collection, so it's interesting to hear him talk about them.

"I don't care if you're 5 or if you're 80, it makes the cars more personal," she said.

A cable lock for guns sold at many local gun stores.

SHOOTING: Children need to be educated

Don Howard, a firearms instructor with the Hardin County Sheriff's Office, said he would encourage gun owners to purchase cable locks at a local gun store. The lock has an extended loop and comes with a key, which the owner could hide.

With the locks, he explained, if a child is able to get a weapon, he or she will be unable to fire it.

Some law enforcement agencies, such as Radcliff and Elizabethtown police departments, offer the locks for free.

If a gun is being stored in a house, Howard said it should be placed on the top shelf of a closet. He recommended removing the magazine and placing it next to the gun.

In the event the weapon is needed for home protection, the owner only needs to insert the clip and charge it, explained Howard, who has been with HCSO for 22 years and a firearms instructor for 14.

HCSO is not the investigating agency in this case.

Finally, he said most important is to educate children, who likely are not able to differentiate a toy from a real weapon.

"That's the scariest thing that concerns me,"

Howard said.

Even if a gun has a safety mechanism, a child can disable that mechanism easily, he said. Depending on the make of weapon, an average of 5 to 8 pounds of trigger pull is needed to fire a round, Howard added.

"A child can very easily pull a trigger," he said.

older brother, Mark, about the mysterious disappearance of the roast beef. That's when I told Mom, matter of factly, what had transpired while she was at PTA.

At once there was a flurry of activity. Dad was suddenly home, the police arrived, I was questioned and later, late in the night, taken to the police station and asked to pick out the suspect in a line-up.

The stranger wasn't among them.

Who told him to leave my house? And why did he not take me? Did he move on to abduct other children? And who were those children in the photo album?

The possibilities are as frightening as the ones that could have happened to me.

It's comforting to be a part of the many who never were abducted or among the 99 percent who were but returned safely home.

It's the 1 percent that haunts me. For I was most surely almost among them.

Jesus told about leaving the 99 and searching for the lost one: "If a man has a hundred sheep and one of them wanders away, what will he do? Won't he leave the 99 others on the hills and go out to search for the one that is lost?" (Matthew 18:12).

Why does he go? Because the Father cares.

And knows: "I have called you by name; you are mine" (Isaiah 43:1).

Even when their names are changed and their backgrounds erased, the Father knows who the missing children are and to whom they belong.

And even when their lives are lost, he has found them.

DEAR ABBY

Irked customers sound off on drive-thru decorum

Dear Abby: May I comment on the letter from “Working the Window in Georgia” (Jan. 22), the drive-thru worker who said people should have their orders ready when they pull up to the speaker? Many drive-thru restaurants place their speakers in front of the first menu you see. Unless you frequent the restaurant, it’s impossible to know what you want until you reach the menu.

Those of us at the other end of the speaker often cannot understand a word being said, either because the speaker isn’t working properly, because the order-taker has a thick accent, or the person is speaking too fast. — Peggy in Thorton, Colo.

■ Dear Peggy: My readers agree with you 100 percent. Their biggest “beef” is the order menu being located only at the order window/speaker. Fast food corporate America, please take notice. Read on:

■ Dear Abby: How are we supposed to have any idea of what to order when we don’t see the menu until we pull up to the window? This is especially true when I try a new restaurant.

Here are some suggestions for people working the windows:

1. I may not know your menu. So please give me a chance to look it over. If you have a drive-thru, I have a right to use it. If you don’t want new customers to know what you offer, then I’ll be happy to take my business elsewhere.

2. I know you are reading from a script, but if I don’t want a combo meal, please do not ask me repeatedly if I want one.

3. Give me a chance to check my order when you hand it to me. I am really tired of getting to my destination only to find out my order is wrong.

4. Do not argue with me if I want to verify my drink is a diet drink. I am diabetic and a non-diet soda could make me very sick.

5. Please understand even if I don’t have the radio on and there is no background noise, I may still have trouble understanding you.

6. Please give me straw if I order a drink.

I have worked fast food before and I know from experience it is not an easy job. Yes, there are rude customers, but there also are rude employees. I know that from experience, too. — Libby in Little Rock, Ark.

If all else fails, ask daughter to move

Dr. Wallace: Our 20-year-old daughter is still living at home with my husband, our younger children and me. She has been dating the same guy for more than two years, and their relationship is a nightmare not only for them, but also for the rest of the family, including our younger children. Whenever they have a fight, our daughter becomes highly irritable, screaming and slamming doors. This is a most unhealthy relationship. One day it’s love; the next day it’s hate. The relationship is totally void of trust on both sides.

Our daughter has been to counseling, but there has been no improvement. It’s to the point my husband and I need to attend counseling sessions for ourselves; we cannot take any more of this. I know the younger children are adversely affected by the whole situation.

My daughter and her boyfriend are basically good — no drugs or alcohol. All we want is for her to be happy, the way she was before she got a boyfriend. What should we do? We are loving, supportive parents. Our daughter has a full-time job and is capable of supporting herself. — Mother, Jackson, Miss.

■ Mother: Since you haven’t seen positive results working with your daughter, concentrate on the boyfriend. Set up a time when you can talk to him alone and explain the “rocky” relationship he shares with your daughter is affecting your family in a very negative way. Ask for his help and suggestions on what the family can do. If he loves your daughter, he will go with her to get assistance and guidance from a professional counselor. If he is sincere, he can help the situation immensely.

But if all else fails, you must ask your daughter to move out of the house. I know this would be a painful decision, but you cannot allow a dysfunctional member of the family to keep the entire family in constant turmoil.

PARENTS MADE A MISTAKE. Dr. Wallace: I’m on the school drill team that performs at the halftime of football and basketball games and at pep rallies. It’s great fun, and I really enjoy being a part of the team.

My parents demand I get outstanding grades. So when I received a B-plus grade in my first semester of geometry, they made me drop out of the drill team. I’m devastated by this because our drill team will perform at the 2012 graduation ceremony and my cousin will be one of the graduates. I really want to be back on the drill team by then. I don’t think my parents are being fair and I know you’ll agree with me. Please respond to my letter. — Callie, San Diego, Calif.

■ Callie: There are hundreds of better ways for parents to encourage their child to do well in the classroom. They make a mistake when they take away an enjoyable educational activity as a punishment for a low grade. Besides, who says a B-plus is a low grade in the first semester of geometry? I can remember when I would have been thrilled to receive a B-plus in geometry. Luckily, geometry became a bit easier as the year progressed.

I hope your parents relent and you once again become a member of the drill team. It’s a great honor to participate in this extra-curricular experience.

Audit 'blisters' former ag commissioner Farmer

By ROGER ALFORD
The Associated Press

FRANKFORT — A team of auditors discovered what they believed to be "a toxic culture of entitlement" within the Kentucky Department of Agriculture during the administration of former Commissioner Richie Farmer, a one-time University of Kentucky basketball player who ran unsuccessfully for lieutenant governor last year.

Auditor of Public Accounts Adam Edelen said Monday a review turned up evidence of potential criminal wrongdoing, including allegations Farmer misused state employees by directing them to perform personal errands for him, including taking him deer and turkey hunting.

Farmer's attorney, Guthrie True of Frankfort, dismissed the audit as "very political and self-serving."

"I just don't see anything here that any law enforcement agency is going to likely get excited about pursuing in terms of criminal prosecution," True said. "I would be shocked; I would really be shocked if that were to occur."

Farmer, who played on the legendary 1992 University of Kentucky basketball team dubbed "The Unforgettables," breezed through two elections for agriculture commissioner but lost the race for lieutenant governor when questions began to arise about his management of the Department of Agriculture.

Edelen said he will refer information his auditors uncovered to the Kentucky Attorney General, Executive Branch Ethics Commission, Internal Revenue Service,

FARMER

Kentucky Department of Revenue, Office of Inspector General of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the State Personnel Board.

"The responsibility of holding accountable a man I once cheered as a kid is a grim one," Edelen said. "But the law makes no distinction between icons and the rest of us, and neither do I."

Allison Martin, a spokeswoman for Attorney General Jack Conway, acknowledged Monday afternoon that the audit report has been turned over to her office, which would initiate any criminal investigation.

"It is under review and being handled according to the investigative protocol of our office," Martin said. "During this review process, it would be inappropriate for the office to comment further on specific findings of the audit."

Edelen initiated the audit at the request of newly elected Agriculture Commissioner James Comer, who received numerous complaints about the workings of the state agency after he was elected last November.

"The Department of Agriculture under Commissioner Farmer was a culture of entitlement and self-dealing, one in which there was no qualm about using the taxpayers' dollars as their own," Edelen said. "The sheer volume and recklessness of the abuses shock the conscience. ... The former commissioner had state employees on state time take him hunting and shopping, build a basketball court in his back yard, mow his lawn and even chauffeur his dog. These are just some of the documented abuses that ought to outrage every Kentuckian."

Comer said the audit was a necessary step toward restoring confidence in the Department of Agriculture.

New company seeks to acquire Dippin' Dots

The frozen treat Dippin' Dots could be rescued from bankruptcy with a request in court this week.

Brentwood inventor Curt Jones came up with the idea of quick-freezing little pellets of ice cream while working in Lexington on a project to freeze yogurt bacteria to use in animal feed.

The company he founded makes Dippin' Dots in Paducah.

The Tennessean newspaper reported that on Wednesday, a group of Oklahoma investors who formed Dippin' Dots LLC will ask a U.S. Bankruptcy Court in Louisville for permission to take over the assets of Dippin' Dots Inc., which filed for bankruptcy late last year.

Jones said the recession and a protracted legal battle nearly ruined the company.

DOW, S&P 500 SLIP AS SPAIN ENTERS RECESSION. News that Spain's economy entered another recession renewed worries about the fragility of Europe's finances Monday and nudged stocks lower. The market ended its first losing month this year.

A drop in an index of Midwestern manufacturing and a slowdown in consumer spending last month added to worries that the economy is losing steam.

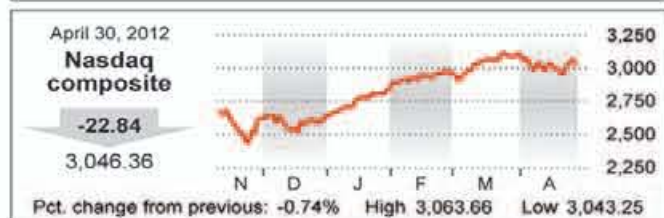

Weaker earnings reports from health insurer Humana and the owner of the New York Stock Exchange, NYSE Euronext, also weighed on stock indexes.

Water District No. 2 'champion'

The News-Enterprise

Hardin County Water District No. 2 has been named the Kentucky Division of Water AWOP Champion. The announcement came last week at the Kentucky Water and Wastewater Operators Association's annual conference at the Galt House in Louisville.

The district also won in 2008 and is the only two-time winning water system in the state.

The Area Wide Optimization Program challenges water treatment plants to reduce turbidity levels below those required by state and federal regulations. Turbidity, or cloudiness, of water can be caused by sand and dirt, and acts as a shielding agent for bacteria and viruses. Particle removal is critical for producing water that is free from dirt and microbes that can cause waterborne diseases.

"Our district has never failed to qualify for the AWOP Award," said James Jeffries, general manager, in a news release. "We know our customers expect the very best and our employees work tirelessly to meet those expectations."

More than 150 water treatment facilities in Kentucky participate in the program. The facilities are divided into two categories based on population served. Hardin County Water District No. 2 is classified in the large water provider category, serving more than 10,000 customers. Water treatment plants that meet the requirements of the optimization program receive the AWOP Award. Of those recognized each year as award winners, one facility is named champion.

The district's White Mills Water Treatment Plant was selected as this year's champion.

"The Nolin River presents several challenges as a raw water source," said Mike Bell, chairman. "It is only through the diligence of our employees that our customers receive the best water in the state."

Disease, insects abundant in crops

This year's early warm weather and dry spring have accelerated plant growth and allowed farmers to plant at a record pace. As of last Monday, it was estimated that 75 percent of Kentucky's corn was planted, compared to just 16 percent last year and a five-year average of 29 percent. While the warm, dry weather has been beneficial to planting and crop development, it also has brought about challenges.

For instance, look at the wheat crop. A mild winter and warm temperatures led to excellent early development and growth; however, now we're beginning to see some problems. A lot of wheat has begun to show some yellowing and unevenness. This may be signs of Barley Yellow Dwarf Virus. This virus has shown itself quite a bit not only throughout Hardin County, but all of Central Kentucky this spring.

Barley Yellow Dwarf is a virus that is spread from grasses to wheat and barley by actively feeding aphids. The mild winter led to an abundance of aphid activity this spring, resulting in an unusually high level of aphid feeding activity. Symptoms of BYDV include stunting of plants and yellow to red-purple discoloration of leaf margins, particularly in upper leaves. BYDV causes decreased yield and test weight in wheat, however, it should be noted that the levels being seen are low, and only minor yield losses should be expected.

Management strategies for BYDV include planting varieties with some level of resistance, planting after the Hessian Fly-Free date, and spraying an insecticide when the economic threshold level for aphid activity is met. These management strategies only provide marginal protection against the virus, though. In a few Central Kentucky cases, insecticide treatments were made twice, and the crop still was infected with the virus.

Looking at corn, the mild winter and early spring have increased activity of many pests, including armyworms. Captures of armyworm moths began unusually early this year, but have since dropped below five-year average levels. This means producers should concentrate scouting efforts on fields that are more susceptible to armyworm infestations. This would include "NON-B.t." containing corn products, such as food grade, white or specialty fields that were planted into a cover crop, especially a grass cover, or into sod ground where grasses might predominate. If armyworm eggs and larvae already were in these grass covers, killing the cover will cause these insects to move over to newly emerging corn. So if this is your situation, it may pay you to scout your corn, even if the cover or weeds already have been killed back.

Because most of the field corn products we grow in Kentucky are genetically modified to contain one to several "B.t." expressing genes, you may, in fact, get some control of armyworm with these. Of course corn rootworm "B.t.s" will not have any effect. Doug Johnson, University of Kentucky entomologist, said he expects that the Viptera "B.t.s" should be quite active and those products that claim control of corn earworm and fall armyworm should have some activity. In corn, chemical control should be considered if two or more larvae are found on 25 percent to 30 percent of the plants. Armyworm is not very difficult to control in corn, providing of course, one gets decent coverage.

Changing your diet to protect your heart

Food Network Kitchens

Q: My doctor says I should change my diet to protect my heart. Any ideas?

A: Eating right and exercising can keep your heart strong and healthy. Follow these easy tips. Your heart will love you for it.

CHOOSE FRUITS AND VEGETABLES. Not only are fruits and vegetables high in vitamins, minerals and fiber, they're low in calories and high in cell-protecting antioxidants.

FOCUS ON FIBER. Fiber is plentiful in fruits, vegetables, whole grains, nuts and beans and lentils. Eating a diet high in fiber helps curb your appetite and keeps the body's digestive system in check. Aim to take in at least 25 grams of fiber each day.

LEARN TO LOVE LOW-FAT DAIRY. Replace high-fat dairy products such as whole milk, cheese, sour cream and cream cheese with skim or 1 percent milk, low-fat yogurt, Neuf-châtel cream cheese and low-fat cheeses.

HELP YOURSELF TO HEALTHY FATS. Capitalize on healthy unsaturated fats from olive and canola oils, nuts, avocados, peanut butter and olives. Don't avoid fat, just choose healthy versions most of the time.

SHAKE OFF SOME SALT. The daily recommendation for sodium is 2,300 milligrams a day for healthy adults — about 1 teaspoon. Because too much sodium can aggravate high blood pressure and kidney disease, those who suffer from these conditions should cap their salt intake to 1,500 milligrams or less.

OPT FOR OMEGA-3 FATS. Research has shown polyunsaturated omega-3 fats can help lower triglycerides (fat in the blood), help maintain HDL "good" cholesterol and decrease the risk of sudden heart attacks, blood clots and strokes. The best sources of omega-3s are found in fatty fish like salmon, mackerel, herring and sardines.

MOVE. Exercise is key for heart health and weight management, so aim for at least 30 minutes of moderate exercise a day.

Chicken Bundles with zucchini on the side

Some recipes look so pretty and taste so yummy it's hard to believe how simple they are to prepare. Chicken Bundles are one of those recipes. The recipe has six ingredients and can be made in less than 30 minutes.

It also is further proof that anything mixed with cream cheese and wrapped in a crescent roll results in something tasty.

There was one change made to the original recipe. To give it a fancier look, sprinkle the top with parsley and sesame seeds.

The bundles are perfect for dinner or a nice lunch with friends. They also are best served fresh because they can get soggy if reheated in the microwave.

Follow the instructions when they say to pinch the seams closed and pat into a square. After trying both ways, patting the dough into a square worked better than trying to use a rolling pin.

Alternate versions of the recipe are endless.

Substitute canned chicken for ham or, if you're a tuna person, make a tuna version.

Give the pockets an Italian flair with Italian seasonings or basil. Maybe sprinkle parmesan cheese on top as well.

Felling a bit spicy? Add Mexican spices to give it a bit of a kick. Adding barbecue sauce or flavoring also could be an option.

To avoid having to mix all the right seasonings, use cream cheese that already is seasoned.

Add vegetables for more of a down-home, pot pie kind of taste.

The possibilities are as unlimited as your imagination and taste buds allow.

4 ounces cream cheese, softened (if you use a bar of cream cheese, this is only half of it)
1.3 ounce canned chicken

(or equivalent cooked chicken)
1 tablespoon sesame seeds
1/4 teaspoon parsley (more if you want to use it to garnish the top)

2 cans crescent rolls (refrigerate until use)
1 tablespoon finely chopped or dried minced onion

Combine the above ingredients except the crescent rolls and mix well.

Open one eight-count package crescent rolls. Do not divide into triangles. Keep every two triangles together, forming four rectangles.

Pinch the seams closed and pat each one into a larger square. Put a spoonful of chicken and cream cheese mixture into the center of each square. Fold the corners up into the center, layering like flower petals so the roll is sealed.

Repeat for each rectangle. Two packages of rolls should make eight pockets.

Place on a lightly greased cookie sheet and bake at 375 degrees until golden brown, about 15-20 minutes.

A DASH OF GLASS

In Kentucky, Derby is a tradition in sports and food

Saturday, May 5, is the 137th running of the Kentucky Derby, which many sports enthusiasts refer to as "the greatest two minutes in sports." The race, which began in 1875, is 1.25 miles long and is for 3-year-olds. But for as much history and tradition there is about the horses and Churchill Downs, there is as much tradition about the food and drinks served at the race track on the first Saturday of May.

The Mint Julep, an iced drink consisting of bourbon, mint and a sugar syrup is the traditional beverage of the race. The historic drink can be served in an ice-frosted silver julep cup but most Churchill Downs patrons sip from souvenir glasses, which first were offered in 1939 and have been available in revised form each year since, printed with all previous Derby winners.

But there are many other foods offered to Derby guests with Derby pie at the top of the list. It is a pastry that was created in the Melrose Inn of Prospect by George Kern with the help of his parents. The pie is a chocolate and walnut delicacy usually with a pastry dough crust. It commonly is made with pecans, chocolate chips and Kentucky bourbon. The name Derby Pie is a registered trademark of Kern's Kitchen, which registered the name in 1968. Kern's Kitchen diligently guards the trademark and secret recipe, which is known only to a small group of Kern family members and a single Kern's Kitchen employee, who actually mixes the recipe every day. I always taught my students that it is a protected product name because it is a registered trademark; any others who make similar pies have had to alter their recipes slightly or use a different name such as Run for the Roses Pie, Kentucky Pie, Pegasus Pie, Chocolate Chip Pie or May Day Pie.

Benedictine or Benedictine Spread is a condiment made with cucumbers and cream cheese. It is used to make crustless cucumber sandwiches and was invented around the turn of the 20th century by Jennie Carter Benedict, a caterer and restaurateur in Louisville. Originally used for sandwiches, Benedictine has in recent years been used as a dip for chips and filling for potatoes.

The Hot Brown, a tradition for visitors of Kentucky, is celebrating its 85th birthday this year, compliments of The Brown Hotel in downtown Louisville. It is an open-faced sandwich of turkey and bacon on toast points, covered in Mornay sauce and baked or broiled until the bread is crisp and the sauce begins to brown. Many Hot Browns also include ham with the turkey and tomatoes over the sauce. Some restaurants substitute cheese sauce for the Mornay, but that doesn't make it a Hot Brown in many people's opinion.

As for other sweets, many visitors to Kentucky will want to take home some famous Kentucky Bourbon Balls. Rebecca Ruth makes those wonderful, decadent treats, but you can make your own for less than you would have to pay for those made by large Chocolatier companies.

One of my favorite sweets for this time of year is bourbon brownies. Cut them in small squares and garnish with a bit of piped whipped cream and add a mint leaf for just an elegant look for the Derby.

Now that I have you drooling, let me give you those recipes.

HOT BROWN SANDWICH

2 T. butter
2 T. all purpose flour
4 c. heavy cream
1/2 c. Romano cheese, plus 1 T. for garnish
Salt and pepper to taste
Sliced roasted turkey breast

2 Slices of Texas toast (crust trimmed)
4 slices of crispy bacon
2 Roma tomatoes, sliced in half
Paprika, parsley

In a two-quart saucepan, melt butter and slowly whisk in flour until combined and forms a thick paste. Continue to cook for two minutes over medium-low heat, stirring frequently. Whisk whipping cream into mixture and cook over medium heat until the cream begins to simmer, about 2 to 3 minutes. Remove sauce from heat and slowly whisk in Romano cheese until Mornay sauce is smooth. Add salt and pepper to taste.

For each Hot Brown, place one slice of toast in an oven safe dish and cover with slices of turkey. Take the two halves of Roma tomato and set them alongside the base of turkey and toast. Next, pour half of the Mornay sauce to completely cover the dish. Sprinkle with additional Romano cheese. Place entire dish under a broiler until cheese begins to brown and bubble. Remove from broiler, cross two pieces of bacon on top, sprinkle with paprika and parsley and serve immediately.

RUN FOR THE ROSES PIE

2 eggs
1 stick butter, melted and cooled
1 c. walnuts, chopped
1 c. semi-sweet chocolate

chips
1/2 c. all purpose flour
1 c. sugar
1 t. vanilla

Mix flour and sugar; add eggs and cooled butter. Then add walnuts, chips; fold in vanilla. Pour into unbaked pie shell. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 to 45 minutes. Pie is done when it looks like a crust has formed on top.

BOURBON BROWNIES

1 box family size brownies
1/2 c. pecans, chopped
1/4 c. bourbon
1/2 c. margarine, softened
2 c. sifted powdered sugar

3 T. bourbon
6 oz. pkg. semi-sweet chocolate chips
2 T. margarine

Make brownies according to package directions and add chopped pecans. Cool brownies and brush them with 1/4 c. bourbon. Cool completely. Cream 1/2 c. margarine and powdered sugar with 3 T. bourbon. Spread over brownies. Cool. Melt chocolate chips and 2 T. margarine in microwave oven. Spread over brownies, refrigerate. It is best to let brownies return to room temperature before serving.

MINT JULEP

1/4 c. fresh mint leaves
2 c. water, heated
2 c. sugar
Crushed ice
Bourbon

To make simple syrup, heat water and whisk in sugar. Remove from heat. Add mint and allow to steep for at least 20 minutes. For each Mint Julep, add cracked ice to a glass and add 3 T. Bourbon. Add 2 1/2 t. syrup. Stir lightly. Garnish with fresh mint. Mint Juleps traditionally are served with two short straws.

SHADY LANE CAFÉ'S BENEDICTINE SPREAD

3-8 oz. cream cheese, softened
2 T. finely diced red onion
1 large cucumber, peeled, seeded & finely diced or grated
1/4 c. mayonnaise
1 T. + 1 1/2 t. lemon juice
1 t. salt
1-2 drops green food coloring

Mix all ingredients in a bowl with a hand mixer until almost fluffy. Makes 2 cups.

Matz or Baffert could have Derby favorite

Trainer Bob Baffert gives Kentucky Derby hopeful Liaison a pat on the head after a bath Sunday at Churchill Downs in Louisville. The Kentucky Derby is scheduled for Saturday.

By BETH HARRIS
AP Racing Writer

LOUISVILLE — Michael Matz is back at the Kentucky Derby with a strong contender for the first time since he won in 2006 with Barbaro, whose bronze likeness now greets all visitors to Churchill Downs.

Bob Baffert is a regular at the Derby, a three-time winner who's been looking for No. 4 since 2002. Only this year, he returns a changed man. A heart attack has a way of doing that.

Either trainer could have the favorite for Saturday's big race.

Matz trains Union Rags, who has never finished worse than third, while Baffert's top horse among his two runners is Bodemeister, named after his 7-year-old son Bode.

Wrenching as it may be to recall Barbaro's tragic end — he broke down in the Preakness and, despite a valiant fight, was euthanized nine months later — Matz doesn't try to temper his delight to be back in the Run for the Roses.

"It's a great feeling to be here after six years, especially with a horse that has a good chance," Matz said. "This doesn't happen too many times and I was lucky enough once. It's hard to believe you can get lucky twice."

Baffert knows you can.

His lifestyle of eating fried food and lots of meat, combined with already high cholesterol, caught up with him last month in Dubai, where he had gone to watch his horse, Game On Dude, run in the $10 million Dubai World Cup. He fell ill and was rushed to a hospital, where surgeons inserted three stents in two arteries.

"It was a pretty big scare for him," said Bernie Schiappa, who co-owns Game On Dude. "He thought he was going to check out."

"I wouldn't listen," Baffert said, understating that he's "a little hard-headed."

When his family isn't around, Baffert has Schiappa to keep him on the straight and narrow. In Louisville, the duo has been hitting the hotel gym at 5:30 a.m. to exercise. Baffert does 30 minutes on the elliptical trainer followed by light weights.

LaRue cruises past Trojans

By JOHN GROTH
jgroth@thenewsenterprise.com

Bunting could be considered a lost art in high school baseball, but it sure wasn't for LaRue County on Monday night.

Three consecutive well-executed bunts paved the way for an eight-run third inning to lead the host Hawks to an 8-2 five-inning victory over North Hardin. The game was called after a 2-hour lightning delay.

Even LaRue County coach Chris Price admitted this kind of bunting success was rare for the Hawks. Still, it left him with a grin from ear-to-ear.

"It made the difference in that inning, didn't it? And we hit the ball better after that. We work on bunting all the time. With the BBCor bats, it's a bigger part of the game. And you know we just like to do it," Price said. "We like to be active with the bats and make things happen. We don't always look as good as we did tonight, obviously, but we did a good job tonight and it made a big difference in the game."

It's been a fun and interesting past two weeks for LaRue County (22-5), which has won 11-of-12. On Saturday, the Hawks won each of their three games in the Louisville Invitational Tournament by one run — including a 1-0 victory over Newport Central Catholic in which they didn't record a hit and scored the only run on a first-inning double steal.

This time it was LaRue County's small ball that propelled it to another win.

Leading 1-0 with runners on first and third in the second inning, three straight LaRue County batters put down perfect bunts to score and advance runners.

Sophomore Austin McDowell had an RBI sacrifice bunt down the first-base line. Senior Kyle Sheeran followed with a bunt single in between third base and shortstop and senior Steven Carpenter had an RBI sacrifice bunt to first base, giving the Hawks a 3-0 lead.

"And the great thing is, both times that we bunted to first is when there was a

The never ending game

Central-John Hardin softball game postponed because of weather

The News-Enterprise

Maybe the third time will be the charm for the John Hardin Lady Bulldogs to host the Central Hardin Lady Bruins in a mandatory 17th District game.

The teams were originally scheduled to play April 19, but the game was rescheduled to Monday night following the sudden resignation of third-year John Hardin coach Corey Yates just hours before the game. Monday's game was halted at 6:25 because of lightning with 14th-ranked Central Hardin leading 8-1 and batting in the top of the third inning. The game was called at 7:15.

The schools said they will talk or email today to try to set up another meeting. John Hardin (6-16 overall, 1-3 district) is slated to play at North Hardin (6-12, 3-1) at 5:30 tonight in a Pink Out game for women's breast cancer awareness, while Central Hardin (16-7, 5-0) is set to host Elizabethtown (9-13, 3-2) at 6 tonight.

With both programs having fairly full schedules this week, the Central Hardin-John Hardin remake might not come until some time next week. First-year Central Hardin coach Jamie Goodman said the Lady Bruins might have to cancel a non-district game to get it in.

John Hardin right fielder Ally Furnish tries to chase down a pop fly in foul territory Monday night against Central Hardin.

Lady Trojans hope to keep streak going at conference track

North boys favored as well

By JOSH CLAYWELL
jclaywell@thenewsenterprise.com

When it comes to the Lincoln Trail Heartland Conference meet, no team has been as dominant as the North Hardin Lady Trojans.

The Lady Trojans have won at least the last 15 conference titles and hope to make it a sweet 16 tonight at Central Hardin's Bruin Field. Field events start at 5:30. Running events start at 6.

The North Hardin boys, meanwhile, look to add to their own streak of three straight titles.

"I'd say North Hardin's the favorite. I think they're pretty solid from top to bottom," said Elizabethtown coach Dickie Jones. "They've got sprinters, they've got good field event people and they've been performing really well in the distance events. There's not a whole lot of weaknesses I see in them."

Just because they're the favorites on paper doesn't mean something can't happen to throw a kink into things, said veteran North Hardin coach James Webb.

"In track and field, it doesn't take much to ruin a race," he said. "You try to think positive. We work hard over here. We have a bunch of great coaches and athletes who want success and who want to continue the tradition that has been established before. It feels good (to be the favorites), but we understand there's a target on our backs and that everyone is going to try and beat us."

Jones said that's easier said than done.

"They've got to have an off-night and somebody's got to have a really good night to knock them off," he said. "They've been running really well."

Other conference members are area schools Central Hardin, Fort Knox, John Hardin, LaRue County and Meade County and the Bourbon City trio of Bardstown, Bethlehem and Nelson County.

Region tennis tourney to start Saturday

The News-Enterprise

After strong regular seasons, area high school tennis players — especially on the girls' side — were rewarded for their efforts Monday night during the 5th Region Tournament draw meeting at Elizabethtown.

The 15-school, 180-player tournament opens Saturday morning at University Drive Park. First-round matches are Saturday, the second round is set for 4:30 p.m. Monday, the quarterfinals are set for 4:30 p.m. Tuesday — with the eight total semifinals following later that night — and the four championship matches are slated for 5 p.m. Wednesday.

The four semifinalists in each of the brackets (boys' singles, girls' singles, boys' doubles, girls' doubles) advance to the KHSAA State Tennis Tournament, which runs May 17-19 at two Lexington locations.

Of the 32 seeds, area players earned 21 — seven in girls' singles, five in boys' doubles, five in girls' doubles and four in boys' singles. Elizabethtown took 3-of-4 overall No. 1 seeds behind the tandem of Bilal Ahmed and Zeeshan Bhatti in boys' doubles, the sister duo of Mary-Chapin and Mackenzie Snow in girls' doubles and AnnLauren Fiepe in girls' singles.

HORSE RACING

Mark Valeski still on fence for Derby

The Associated Press

LOUISVILLE — Trainer Larry Jones is still debating whether to run Mark Valeski in the Kentucky Derby on Saturday.

Even a solid workout by the colt on Monday didn't settle things. Named for a longtime friend of owner-breeder and former Kentucky governor Brereton C. Jones, Mark Valeski went five furlongs in 1:00.20, equaling the fastest of 28 drills at that distance at Churchill Downs.

Jones is playing it cautiously, waiting to see how the colt responds the next two mornings.

"I'm not going to guarantee that we're in or out," he said. "Tomorrow will tell me more, and we'll know really on Wednesday morning when I get on him. Especially if he tries to buck me off, then he's in the (starting) gate."

Mark Valeski was runner-up in his last two races; missing by a nose in the Risen Star Stakes, and by a half-length in the Louisiana Derby.

Trainer D. Wayne Lukas, a four-time Derby winner, is closely monitoring the Mark Valeski developments. He trains Optimizer, who remains on the Derby bubble.

The top 20 entrants based on graded stakes earnings are guaranteed spots in the race. Optimizer is 21st on the list. A defection would put Optimizer, a modest 1-for-9 in his career, and Lukas in the Derby.

"I'd really like to see him get a chance to run," said Lukas, a four-time Derby winner. "One thing about him, he's a true mile-and-a-quarter horse."

TWO FOR ASMUSSEN.

Sabercat and Daddy Nose Best, the two Derby contenders for trainer Steve Asmussen, hit the track Monday for their final workouts.

Sabercat, third in the Arkansas Derby in his last race, went a half-mile in 48.40 seconds. Daddy Nose Best, the Sunland Park Derby winner, was clocked in 49.40 seconds for the same distance.

Asmussen said Sabercat would have to step up his game.

"He needs to be a little faster," he said. "I like his experience but I think he's a horse that's going to have to run faster than he has to this point."

As for Daddy Nose Best, Asmussen hopes to maintain the colt right where he is.

"He's put in some good works over the racetrack and we just want to keep that rhythm with him and keep him happy," he said.

Asmussen is winless with 10 previous Derby starters. Nehro (second last year) and Curlin (third in 2007) were his only runners to finish in the money.

Asmussen, who won his 6,000th race in November, trained three consecutive Horse of the Year champions in Curlin, a two-time honoree, and the filly Rachel Alexandra.

ON THE CLOCK. Creative Cause and Liaison also worked Monday.

Creative Cause, second by a nose in the Santa Anita Derby, appeared to have retained his edge with a swift half-mile in 47.80 seconds.

"It was perfect in my book," trainer Mike Harrington said. "I wanted him to show he was on his game and he did it fairly easily."

Trainer Bob Baffert was encouraged by Liaison's prep of 1:00.80 for five furlongs.

"Today he looked more like a Derby horse than he has in the last couple of months," said Baffert who also sends out Bodemeister, one of the Derby favorites.

LOOKING FOR A REPEAT. The Animal Kingdom team, winners of last year's Derby, are back for another try with Went the Day Well.

Owner Barry Irwin, trainer Graham Motion and jockey John Velazquez are banking on an equipment change as the winning edge in the repeat bid. Went the Day Well, winner of two straight including the Spiral Stakes at Turfway Park, will wear blinkers for the first time in the Derby.

Blinkers restrict the field of vision, helping some horses concentrate better.

"When Johnny worked him last week at Keeneland, he really didn't want to go away from the other horse," Motion said. "Johnny and I talked about it and he gave me the confidence to try it. I really think it's the right move."

While Went the Day Well has been training at Churchill Downs, Motion was in Maryland at the Fair Hill Training Center. He is slated to arrive in Louisville today to supervise the colt's final preparations.

DERBY: Baffert or Matz could have favorite

"I'm training him, he's training the horses," Schiappa said.

Bodemeister's owner, Ahmed Zayat, greeted Baffert with a big hug outside his barn Monday. The biggest change Zayat sees in Baffert is a new contentment.

"He doesn't have to get everything done perfect," Zayat said. "His demeanor is telling me that 'I'm happy to have a second chance and now I'm going to try to enjoy it and try not to stress myself."

That includes watching his horses during races. Instead of getting fired up, waving his arms and shouting, Baffert sticks to a more subdued, "Come on, boy."

Mostly, though, Baffert's new mantra is not to worry about things he can't control, not an easy task for a perfectionist.

"I used to get upset over little things that I shouldn't have even worried about," he said. "This sport can really get you down. I'm actually enjoying my sport a little bit better."

Bodemeister turned in the most dominating performance of any Derby prospect with a 9 1/2-length victory in the Arkansas Derby. He's never been worse than second in his four career starts, all this year. He didn't race as a 2-year-old and no colt since Apollo in 1882 has won the Kentucky Derby without running at 2.

Baffert said young Bode is more nervous about his namesake's performance in the 1 1/4 mile race than his father.

"When I told him Bodemeister was going to the Kentucky Derby, his first question was, 'Well, what if he loses?'" Baffert said. "I said, 'Well, we can't worry about that.' It's a little extra pressure for me to make sure that he runs well."

Matz, meantime, has been quietly going about his business since hitting the big-time with Barbaro. While his champion, undefeated colt was trying to battle back, Matz won the Breeders' Cup Ladies' Classic that fall, making for a bittersweet year.

Union Rags, with four wins in five career races, is residing in the same barn that housed Barbaro at Churchill Downs; same exercise rider, too.

"We have some very nice memories from here," said Peter

Brette, who also works as Matz's assistant trainer. "It's really nice to be back with a horse that's got a really good chance."

Barbaro ran three times before the Derby, while Union Rags has had an even lighter schedule — just two starts, including a win in the Fountain of Youth Stakes after a strong 2-year-old campaign.

"I hope I learned something in six years," said Matz, a former Olympic equestrian. "It's just like anything else, probably the same thing you learned riding — experience."

Tiger trades news conference for Facebook

By DOUG FERGUSON
AP Golf Writer

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — The only questions Tiger Woods fielded before his next tournament came from his fans.

Instead of a news conference before this week's Wells Fargo Championship, Woods answered 19 questions Monday in a 15-minute video posted on his website. The questions were submitted through Facebook and Twitter.

The timing of the decision was peculiar. Woods is coming off his worst performance ever at the Masters, a tie for 40th in which he finished 15 shots behind and was roundly criticized for kicking his 9-iron in disgust after a poor tee shot on the par-3 16th hole in the second round.

Woods typically speaks to the media before every tournament. This time, he will not speak to reporters until his first round Thursday at Quail Hollow.

His agent, Mark Steinberg, did not immediately return a phone call from The Associated Press. He earlier told The Charlotte Observer that Woods' trading the traditional media for social media was not in response to the criticism he received at the Masters.

"The media will continue to have access to him," Steinberg said. "This isn't anything more than a couple of times a year to interact with the fans. They deserve that. This isn't intended to make a statement. This is intended to be more inclusive. This isn't a statement whatsoever. Some in the media might interpret it that way, but that's not the intent."

Among the questions he took for the video:

■ Do you have a good chance of winning?

■ Have you ever made an albatross?

■ What was the difference between Bay Hill (where he won) and the Masters?

Fans were told that he would answer questions about his next two tournaments — Quail Hollow and The Players Championship — although Woods took the question about how his performance changed from Bay Hill and Augusta. Another question was what he had been working on with swing coach Sean Foley since the Masters.

"At the Masters, I was kind of struggling with my ball-striking a little bit," he said. "Sean and I fixed it. It had to do with posture. My setup wasn't quite right, as well as my takeaway. I just needed to do hundreds of reps. I'm getting dialed in."

Woods, the biggest star in golf with 72 tour wins and 14 majors, has operated under a different set of rules than most other players. In a deal made years ago with the PGA Tour, he only comes to the media center for his pre-tournament news conference when he is the defending champion or is at a tournament for the first time or one he has not played in a long time. Woods always goes to the media center before tournaments at the majors.

This is believed to be the first time he has ever skipped his media obligations before the tournament.

Woods said he was excited to get back to competition, having taken a full week off after the Masters. He said he has changed his swing over the years to alleviate stress on his left knee, which has been operated on four times.

"Let's end it at four," he said. "Plus, I have two little ones to chase around."

On other topics:

■ He said he has made an albatross twice in his career, but not in competition. One was during a practice round at the Walker Cup in Wales in 1995, the other at Isleworth just two days after watching Mark O'Meara make a 2 on the par-5 seventh hole.

■ His favorite trophy from the majors is the claret jug awarded the British Open champion.

■ Of the next two tournaments, there were more questions about The Players Championship, especially the 70-foot birdie putt he made from the back of the island green on the par-3 17th in the third round of 2001, the only year he won at Sawgrass. Woods said he watched Fred Funk in the group ahead of him four-putt from about the same spot.

"I wasn't trying to make it," he said. "I was trying to get it close and not three-putt. I was trying not to lose a shot. I'll take those accidents."

As for the best putt he ever made on tour? Woods said it was par putt from just inside 4 feet on the final hole at the 1997 Masters, which he won by 12 shots with a record score of 270 for his first major.

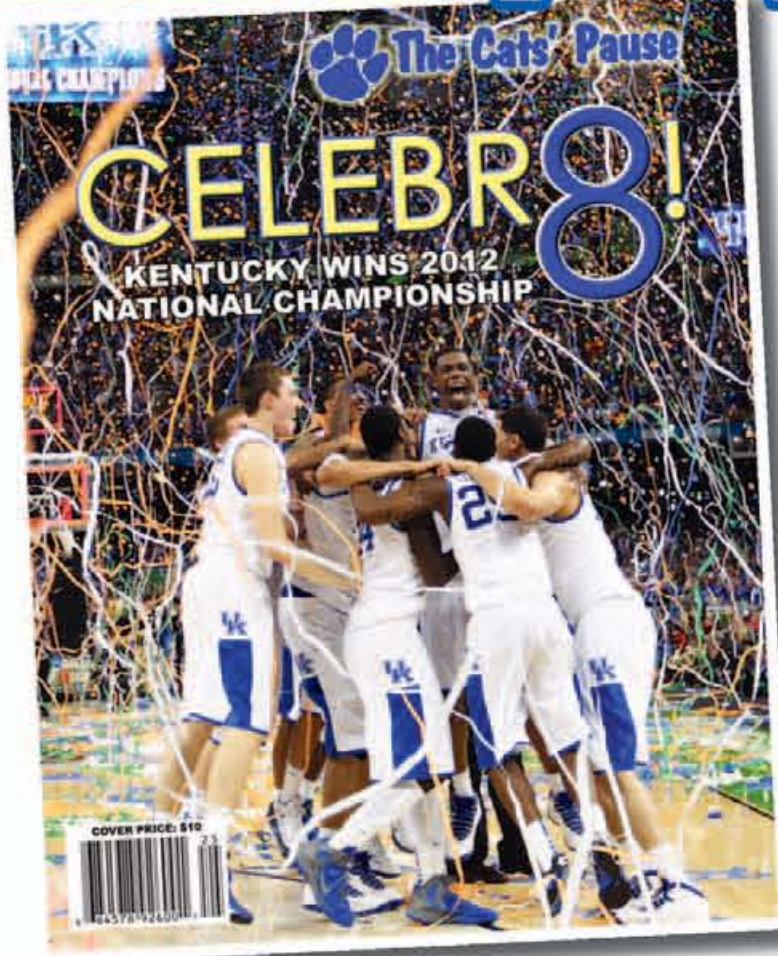

"To set the record, all the history it meant at the time, to have my dad there at the back of the green," he said. "By far it was the biggest."

As for his chances of winning?

"I feel like I do, yes," Woods said. "I feel like if I do the things that we've been working on, and get my posture and takeaway dialed in, then yes, I feel like I have a good chance. I'm going to a golf course I like in Charlotte. I've won there before. The very next week is a tournament that I've also won at. They're two ball-striking events. You've got to hit the ball really well there at those two tournaments to give yourself a chance, and make a few putts at the same time. I'm looking forward to that."

Houston's Keenum to join Texans

By CHRIS DUNCAN
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON — Overlooked again, Case Keenum will start his NFL career close to where he proved his skeptics wrong in college.

The record-setting Houston quarterback said Monday he will sign as an undrafted free agent with the Houston Texans, the team he was hoping would give him his shot.

“It’s really unbelievable,” Keenum said Monday on the Houston campus. “I’m extremely excited for so many reasons.”

Keenum was disappointed he wasn’t drafted. But when the Texans called Saturday night, he immediately related it to his transition from high school to college.

Houston was the only school which offered him a scholarship after a stellar career at Wylie High School in Abilene. Keenum rewarded Houston’s faith by becoming the Football Bowl Subdivision’s career leader in yards passing (19,217) and touchdown passes (155), and he’s the only FBS quarterback to throw for more than 5,000 yards in three different seasons.

“That’s just kind of part of my identity,” Keenum said. “Coming out of high school, I had one scholarship offer. I said that before the draft that all I need is one chance, and I got my one chance here, with a great organization and great coaches.”

The Texans were down to third-string quarterback T.J. Yates by the end of last season. They still finished 10-6, won their division and earned their first playoff berth. Matt Leinart, last year’s backup until he broke his collarbone, is expected to sign with Oakland.

Matt Schaub said recently that he’s almost fully recovered from a broken right foot, and Yates will be the backup in 2012. Schaub called Keenum on Saturday night to welcome him into the mix.

Keenum also felt comfortable with coach Gary Kubiak and the staff after a recent 30-minute workout at Reliant Stadium.

“I clicked really well over there,” Keenum said. “It just felt right. I’m really excited it’s happening this way.”

Keenum tore the anterior cruciate ligament in his right knee in the third game of the 2010 season. Houston appealed for a medical redshirt and Keenum was granted one more season to take aim at the NCAA’s career passing records.

He not only shattered the marks, he also guided Houston to unprecedented heights in 2011. The Cougars won their first 12 games and broke into the top 10 in the Bowl Championship Series standings. Houston was headed for its first BCS berth — and the first for Conference USA — until losing at home to Southern Miss in the league championship game Dec. 3.

Donning a Texans T-shirt and matching baseball cap, Keenum said the last few days have been a whirlwind.

“It still hasn’t hit,” Keenum said. “I haven’t even signed my contract yet. This is all brand new to me.”

Lions look to Moore as No. 3 QB candidate

By LARRY LAGE
AP Sports Writer

DETROIT — Boise State standout Kellen Moore has agreed to a free-agent deal with Detroit, giving the Lions someone to develop behind starter Matthew Stafford and backup Shaun Hill.

Athletes First spokeswoman Savannah Wall confirmed the agreement Monday after Moore wasn’t picked in last week’s NFL draft. Moore is represented by agent David Dunn, chairman of Athletes First.

Moore won 50 games in college, a Football Bowl Subdivision record for a starting quarterback, but wasn’t among the 253 players taken in the draft.

“Very frustrating process, but a great outcome in the end,” Moore told the Idaho Statesman. “Going into it, you felt very comfortable and confident that you’d get an opportunity to get drafted. Bottom line is it didn’t happen. But it’s kind of funny you end up where you’d love to go in the first place.”

The Lions acknowledged Saturday night adding a No. 3 quarterback was on their list.

“That will be one of the things that we’ll probably be looking for,” Detroit coach Jim Schwartz said.

Detroit has just two quarterbacks on the roster, Stafford and Hill, because Drew Stanton left as a free agent this offseason to sign with the New York Jets. He was later traded to Indianapolis.

Quarterbacks Andrew Luck and Robert Griffin III were drafted No. 1 and No. 2 overall and Chandler Harnish was the 11th and final signal-caller taken, getting drafted with the last pick.

Moore, who completed nearly 74 percent of his passes last year, finished his college career among the NCAA all-time leaders with 14,667 career yards passing and 142 career touchdown passes. But the 6-foot, 197-pound native of Prosser, Wash., knew many questioned his future in the NFL because of his height and a perceived lack of arm strength.

“There’s a lot of ways to evaluate a quarterback,” Moore said at the NFL combine in February. “Some evaluate it and put a lot of emphasis on that. That’s fine. Smile, and move on.”

He told the Statesman this weekend: “I don’t think there will probably be a more motivated quarterback.”

Boise State had a school-record six players picked in this year’s draft. Detroit selected former Boise State receiver Titus Young in the second round last year and he had a productive rookie season as a No. 3 receiver behind All-Pro Calvin Johnson and solid veteran Nate Burleson.

Bills’ Johnson to have minor groin surgery

By JOHN WAWROW
AP Sports Writer

BUFFALO, N.Y. — Buffalo Bills receiver Stevie Johnson is scheduled to have what his agent described as “very minor” surgery to repair a groin injury that nagged the player for most of last season.

C.J. Laboy confirmed in an email Monday the surgery is scheduled to take place in Philadelphia today.

Johnson announced the news himself on his Twitter account, noting he wants to be 100 percent healthy heading into the season. Upon arriving in Philadelphia on Sunday evening, Johnson then proceeded to post photos of his search to find the city’s best cheesesteak.

Laboy said the procedure was planned. Though he added Johnson is expected to be fully recovered within weeks, the Bills aren’t expected to rush the player’s rehab.

That makes it uncertain whether Johnson will be cleared to participate for the start of a series of voluntary minicamps, which open May 29.

With 1,004 yards receiving last season, Johnson became the first Bills player to break the 1,000-yard mark in consecutive seasons. He avoided becoming a free agent in March, when he signed a five-year, $36.25 million contract extension.

In other news, the Bills announced Richmond quarterback Aaron Corp was among 10 undrafted rookie free agents to agree to contracts with the team.

Listed at 6-foot-4, and 215 pounds, Corp began his college career at Southern California before a broken leg cost him the starting job in a competition with Matt Barkley. Upon transferring to Richmond, Corp was limited to playing just three games in 2010 because of injury. Last year, he completed 247 passes for 2,682 yards and 17 touchdowns.

Though his draft stock dropped as a result of injuries, he’s considered an accurate passer and a capable running threat.

Corp will compete for the No. 3 job in Buffalo behind returning starter Ryan Fitzpatrick and veteran backup Tyler Thigpen.

Rounding out the list of undrafted additions are defensive backs Cris Hill (Virginia Tech), Delano Howell (Stanford), Nick Sukay (Penn State) and Ian Wild (Mercyhurst); offensive linemen Paul Madsen (Colorado State) and David Snow (Texas); Missouri State running back Chris Douglas, Texas A&M linebacker Garrick Williams and Florida State punter Shawn Powell.

Giants’ Posey thrilled with strong first month in comeback

By JANIE McCAULEY
AP Baseball Writer

SAN FRANCISCO — Buster Posey knows the day will come when he again has to step toward the third-base line, see a charging runner trying to score and brace for a collision.

That’s life as a catcher. Instincts take over and plays are made, or missed. Sometimes, such moments occur with devastating consequences, like Posey’s season-ending left leg and ankle injury last May 25 when he was run over at the plate by the Marlins’ Scott Cousins.

As new-look Miami visits AT&T Park today for the club’s first trip back to San Francisco since that fateful day, Posey has surprised even himself with such a strong comeback. And anybody who understands the mindset of a catcher realizes just how hard it will be for Posey not to block the plate when the time comes, as Giants manager and former catcher Bruce Bochy has instructed since Day 1 of spring training.

“That’s something I really don’t think about,” Posey said of when he might be barreled over again. “It’s part of the game. I know there are going to be plays at the plate. The best thing for me to do is to make sure I’m in a good position. With the work that we put in this spring, it’s getting close to becoming second nature. Even last year, I never set up on the plate. I always set up a

League suspends Delmon Young 7 days

The Associated Press

DETROIT — Delmon Young was suspended by Major League Baseball on Monday for seven days without pay following his arrest on a hate crime harassment charge last week in New York.

The commissioner’s office said the suspension is retroactive to Friday, when Young was arrested after a late-night tussle at his hotel during which police say he yelled anti-Semitic epithets.

“Those associated with our game should meet the responsibilities and standards that stem from our game’s stature as a social institution,” commissioner Bud Selig said in a statement. “An incident like this cannot and will not be tolerated. I understand that Mr. Young is regretful, and it is my expectation that he will learn from this unfortunate episode.”

The statement from the commissioner’s office also said that Young would be required to participate in a treatment program.

Young is eligible for reinstatement from the restricted list May 4.

The suspension will cost Young approximately $257,240 of his $6,725,000 salary.

little bit in front of the plate, so it’s not that big of a change to move maybe a step out a little bit further.”

Catchers know it’s often an unavoidable collision course.

Houston Astros catcher Jason Castro missed two games last week with a sore neck after a scary collision with the Brewers’ Mat Gamel.

On April 23 in Milwaukee, Castro was plowed over by Gamel, who wasn’t able to knock the ball loose and recorded the third out. Castro has said he won’t change his style on making such plays — using caution.

This spring, Bochy said he would take the decision of blocking the plate out of Posey’s hands because, “I certainly don’t want people to think he’s backing off on his own.”

The closest call Posey had in the opening month came when New York Mets pinch-runner Scott Hairston clipped the catcher’s leg to break up a double play attempt in the ninth inning of a 5-4 San Francisco loss at New York on April 21. Posey was knocked off balance and threw wildly to first trying for the second out, and the error allowed the Mets to score the winning run. Posey acknowledged Hairston’s play was clean.

“He’s doing fine. If you watch him, he’s not showing any effects,” Bochy said of Posey’s injury. “That’s behind us, that’s behind him and I really don’t think he thinks about it much anymore. You have a lot going on, but still your instincts take over there. Hopefully you’ve done enough practice where you’re going to do the right thing and get yourself in the right position. He did a lot of work in the spring.”

These days, Cousins is at Triple-A New Orleans and there’s more talk about outspoken Marlins manager Ozzie Guillen making headlines than what happened almost a year ago. That’s largely to Posey’s credit. He has moved on, and shown signs he is still every bit the player he was before tearing three ligaments in his left ankle and breaking a bone in his lower leg.

The 2010 NL Rookie of the Year is batting .353 with four home runs and nine RBIs, has stayed on the field more regularly than he envisioned at this early stage, and has no lingering effects from the injuries. He has also made four starts at first base to give his body a break.

“I’ve been happy with the first month. My ankle has responded great,” Posey said. “I’ve been out there as much or maybe more than I hoped for. It stinks to be sidelined for any amount of time, but especially as long as I was last year. Just having fun each day and enjoying it.”

Miami takes 2-0 lead over Knicks

The Associated Press

Dwyane Wade scored 25 points, Chris Bosh added 21 and Miami beat New York, 104-94 on Monday night, sending the Knicks to an NBA-record-tying 12th straight postseason loss.

Making matters worse for the Knicks: center Amare Stoudemire cut his left hand in a postgame incident. The Knicks did not immediately release any details on how it happened, and coach Mike Woodson — who saw the cut — declined to offer specifics.

LeBron James finished with 19 points, nine assists and seven rebounds for the Heat, who lead the Eastern Conference first-round series 2-0.

Carmelo Anthony scored 30 points on 12-for-26 shooting for New York, which got 18 points from Stoudemire and 13 apiece from Tyson Chandler and J.R. Smith. The only other team to lose 12 straight playoff games is the Memphis Grizzlies, who dropped their first dozen postseason contests from 2004 through 2006.

New York’s last postseason win came April 29, 2001. The Knicks get another chance to snap the drought Thursday when they host Game 3.

PACERS 93, MAGIC 78.

David West had 18 points and 11 rebounds to help Indiana even the Eastern Conference first-round series at one game apiece.

Danny Granger and George Hill each added 18 points and Paul George had 17 points and eight rebounds for Indiana.

Glen Davis led the Magic with 18 points and 10 rebounds, but he shot 5-for-16 from the field. J.J. Redick scored 13 points and Jameer Nelson added 12 for Orlando.

The Pacers were heavy favorites in the series because Dwight Howard, Orlando’s All-Star center, is out with a back injury. Indiana lost Game 1, 81-77 on Saturday, and the frustrated Pacers fought hard to avoid taking a two-game deficit to Orlando on Wednesday.

Indiana outrebounded Orlando, 26-13 in the second half and held the Magic to 36 percent shooting overall. Indiana has held the Magic below 40 percent shooting in both games.

Celtics’ Rondo suspended for Game 2 against Hawks

By PAUL NEWBERRY
AP Sports Writer

ATLANTA — Boston Celtics guard Rajon Rondo has been suspended for Game 2 of the opening-round playoff series against the Atlanta Hawks.

The NBA announced its decision Monday, less than 24 hours after Rondo stuck out his chest to bump referee Marc Davis while complaining about a call in the final minute of Boston’s 83-74 loss in Game 1.

Rondo won’t be able to play tonight in Atlanta when the Celtics try to even the series. The NBA’s assist leader scored 20 points and dished out 11 assists in the opener, leaving Boston with a huge hole in its lineup.

NHL

Predators searching for fix vs. Coyotes

By TERESA M. WALKER
AP Sports Writer

The Nashville Predators better hope a return home helps them put their defense back together, or their second straight Western Conference semifinal will end much quicker than a year ago.

The Predators flew home Monday trailing Phoenix, 2-0. A team so confident after ousting the Detroit Red Wings in just five games let the opener slip away in overtime in the desert, and then the Predators made mistake after mistake in losing Game 2 on Sunday night, 5-3.

Coach Barry Trotz is considering lineup changes to get his Predators back on track. He needs something going into Game 3 on Wednesday.

“The positive things are our power play is hitting pretty good,” Trotz said. “We’re back home, where we can be very comfortable and get this thing back on the rails, which is really good. We know what we have to correct, it’s just a matter of getting it done. We know the Coyotes are a good opponent, and we need to focus on what we need to do.”

The Predators were sixth in the NHL at home in the regular season with a 26-10-5 record. They also outscored opponents 124-103 on home ice.

But the Coyotes are pretty comfortable in Nashville, too, having won three straight in Music City. They also have yet to lose on the road this postseason after taking all three games in Chicago in the first series. Phoenix coach Dave Tippett said on a conference call Monday that the key for the Coyotes is their game doesn’t change at home or on the road.

“We defend well. We rely on everybody to do the job for us,” Tippett said.

“The other thing is that sometimes it’s fun to go in to play in a hostile building. When that national anthem goes in Chicago, you get excited to play and I’m sure it’s going to be the same in Nashville.”

Perhaps the thing most galling to the Predators is that the Coyotes are beating them with their own style:

Good goaltending, team defense and hard work.

“We have to get back to our identity a little bit,” Trotz said.

The Predators can trace each of Phoenix’s goals in Game 2 to mistakes by themselves, and the worst may have been when David Legwand threw the puck out into the slot from behind the net rather than tossing it into the corner. That led to a goal seconds later.

Center Mike Fisher said the Predators turned in an “unacceptable” effort in Game 2, thinking too much about offense and not protecting their own zone. But he pointed out the Predators won three straight in taking their first-round series against Detroit, which they can now do against Phoenix.

“It’s gut-check time for us,” Fisher said. “We really have to focus on turning things around and getting back to our identity and to get back to those things we’ve done to be successful in the past. ... We have to be much better at home, and we know we will be.”

COLLEGE ATHLETICS

Butler may leave Horizon for Atlantic 10

By MICHAEL MAROT
AP Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS – Small-school Butler could soon be making a big move.

The NCAA Tournament darling is reportedly debating whether to leave the Horizon League for the stronger, higher-profile and potentially more profitable Atlantic 10.

Bulldogs athletic director Barry Collier met Monday with his coaches, part of a regular meeting process he has with athletic department employees. Spokesman Jim McGrath said Collier declined to comment on what was discussed at the meeting or where the decision-making process stands.

“We’ve been longtime members in good standing of the Horizon League and we continue to examine the ever-changing landscape of conference affiliation,” McGrath said.

The Indianapolis Star first reported that university President James Danko notified trustees in a letter that the school had been conducting a cost-benefit analysis of changing conference affiliations. Coaches have been fielding questions, too, and trustees have been told not to discuss the possibility of a move that has caught the ear of Horizon League officials.

“Our commissioner, Mr. (Jon) LeCrone, has been in contact with the president and athletic director and

Utah State, San Jose State acknowledge MWC talks

The Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY – Officials at Utah State and San Jose State acknowledge they are in discussions with the Mountain West Conference over realignment for 2013 yet said no formal agreement has been reached.

Conference USA already is set to bring aboard Texas-San Antonio just months before the school was to begin its first season in the Western Athletic Conference.

The moves could mean the end of the WAC as a football league. Utah State athletic director Scott Barnes is attending WAC meetings in Phoenix but acknowledged “things have progressed,” though no decision is formal.

San Jose State sports information director Lawrence Fan said Monday the school also has been in discussions to join the Mountain West.

Utah State and San Jose State have a history dating to their days in the Big West.

they’ve not said anything to him,” Horizon League senior associate commissioner Bill Benner said Monday. “As far as we know, the status is quo.”

Butler’s board of trustees is scheduled to meet May 9-10 and this month’s staff assembly general meeting is slated for May 16.

Danko did not immediately respond to an interview request from The Associated Press. Neither did Butler board of trustees chairman Craig Fenneman or A-10 commissioner Bernadette McGlade.

The Atlantic 10 is looking to replace Temple, which will join the Big East in all sports other than football in 2013-14. The football team will begin playing football in the Big East this fall.

A-10 officials are reportedly interested in adding three schools – Butler, George Mason and Virginia Commonwealth – following Temple’s departure.

All three have played in the men’s Final Four since 2006, but the Bulldogs are the only one of those three to reach the championship game. Butler lost to Duke in the 2010 title game when Gordon Hayward’s half-court heave bounced off the rim in Indy. The Bulldogs then lost to Connecticut in the 2011 championship game when they shot just 18.8 percent from the field.

runner on first and the first baseman had to hold and we called for it on the first-base line and they did it perfect and then the next time we had a runner on second, so we called for it down the third-base line and he did it perfectly,” Price said. “That does not hardly ever work that way but tonight it was super.”

McDowell said Price talked to him before his at-bat. He reminded McDowell how the Hawks had a runner on third and this could be a key scoring opportunity and a great time for an RBI.

“He told me to bunt it down the first-base line and it was a couple of inches away from the first-base line,” McDowell said. “It (our bunting success) really doesn’t (happen very often). We just keep working on it.”

But the Hawks weren’t done. With two outs, they started teeing off against the Trojans (15-10).

After senior Jesse Johnson walked, seniors Slade Owens and Kyle Meredith hit back-to-back RBI singles against freshman Markus Bell – prompting North Hardin coach Ace Adcock to make a pitching change.

Adcock moved junior designated hitter Aaron Jones to the mound and Bell to second base, but it didn’t quiet the Hawks.

Jones walked junior Cole Hughes before senior Wesley Kessinger laced a three-run triple to right field to push the advantage to 8-0.

North Hardin answered, scoring two quick runs in the third – one an RBI flyout by senior Andrew Boyles and the other on an RBI groundout by senior Antonio Simmons. But lightning stopped the Trojans from gaining any more ground.

Jones kept the Hawks off-kilter during his 2 1/3 innings of work, allowing three hits and one run. He also struck out one and hit a batter.

“He gave us a chance to at least get back in it if we had an opportunity to play. We feel like we at least had a chance going into our next two to three at-bats. He came in and put up some goose eggs that we needed and worked out of a big bases-loaded jam. That was huge,” said

Adcock, whose team has lost 5-of-7. “I think he located his off-speed really well, both the curveball and changeup, to keep them off-balance a little bit.”

One thing is clear: everyone is chasing North Hardin – yet again. The Trojans are ranked second in Class 3-A, while the Lady Trojans are fifth.

“If everything goes accordingly and all the kids progress as they have been all year, they’re going to be hard to beat,” Webb said. “As long as we keep it in their minds that we have to get better each week – and that’s our main goal; let’s see a PR each week, especially this time of year heading to State – we should be the team to beat.”

Both North Hardin teams are coming off a spectacular weekend at the Eastern Relays at the University of Louisville.

Junior Chanel Roberts broke her own school record in the shot put and senior Kirk Oxendine won the 100-meter open dash. Several other athletes had top-five performances.

The Trojans also finished ahead of 3-A foes Louisville Male, Louisville St. Xavier and Lexington Bryan Station.

“This weekend was frustrating, yet rewarding,” Webb said. “It was frustrating that we had prom, so our mindset was to get our seniors a good day in on Friday. ... We were proud that no school in Kentucky beat us. That doesn’t mean much because we know Male and Bryan Station and St. X are all pretty much neck-and-neck with us.”

COLLEGE HOOPS

Richardson joins U of L’s coaching staff

The Associated Press

Kareem Richardson is one of three new additions to Louisville coach Rick Pitino’s staff after Pitino’s son, Richard, left to take over Florida International and took two Cardinals’ staffers with him.

Richardson spent last season at Xavier after working three years at Drake. Andre McGee will become Louisville’s director of basketball operations, replacing Mark Lieberman and Doug Davenport is the Cardinals new director of video operations replacing Matt Morris.

Louisville is coming off its first Final Four appearance since 2005 and is expected to be highly ranked after losing just three players from last season’s squad.

TYNDALL TAKING OVER AT SOUTHERN MISS. Donnie Tyndall has already revived a dormant basketball program.

That won’t be necessary at Southern Mississippi. The 41-year-old Tyndall admits there are high expectations. That’s not necessarily a bad thing.

Tyndall comes to the Golden Eagles after six seasons at Morehead State, where he finished with a 114-85 record, including a 70-40 mark in the Ohio Valley Conference. He led Morehead State to two NCAA Tournament appearances.

Forever Missed, Never Forgotten
May God hold you in the palm of his hand.

Love you and miss you,
Your Loving Family

In Memory of

Dorothy Stribling

I know it has only been 2 years...

At twilight when the day is done,
and sunset flames the sky,
We think of you dear Mother & Wife, and the happy days gone by.
Thoughts of you come drifting back,
within our dreams to stay,
To know that you are resting,
when the twilight ends the day.

Love always, your husband,
children, grandchildren,
great grandchildren
& all who knew you

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Dear Heloise: I work for the U.S. Postal Service, and occasionally customers come into our office with stamps on their letters that have been cut or peeled off other envelopes because they are not canceled.

Once a stamp has been adhered to an envelope, it is considered used even if it hasn't been canceled. It cannot be steamed, peeled off or cut and glued onto another envelope.

I know in this economy we all try to cut corners and save, but I want to inform your readers of this.

Thank you for your time and for all the help you have given everyone through the years. — Shawn A., Youngstown, Ohio

■ Readers, please remember that once a stamp has been processed by the Postal Service, whether or not it has been canceled, it cannot be pasted on another envelope to use as postage.

EASY READER. Dear Heloise: I love to take long, soaking baths with a good book. Since I received an e-reader (an electronic tablet computer to read downloaded books on), I had been afraid to get it near the tub until I came up with this solution: I seal it in a 1-gallon zippered bag, and now there's no fear of getting it wet. — Kay in Colorado Springs, Colo.

■ Check with the manufacturer to make sure humidity won't damage the unit.

FAQ SECTION. Dear Heloise: I like the FAQ (frequently asked questions) sections that many websites have today. I save lots of time reading that section, instead of holding on the phone for a customer-service representative to answer a common question.

The FAQ section usually is on the bottom of the home page. — A Reader in Texas

ACCOUNT NUMBERS. Dear Heloise: After having my pocket picked a while back when I was out of the country, I now have the number to call to report lost or stolen cards as well as my account number in my smartphone.

Usually, when the card is gone, so is the account number. Finding this number can be a real hassle, especially if you are out of the country. — Robert H., Dallas

■ Make sure your phone is password-protected.

WHO'S YOUR DOCTOR?

Dear Heloise: It is helpful for people to get a business card from their doctors so they have their name, address, phone number, fax number and email address.

It's surprising how many people are not sure of their doctor's name and information. It would simplify communication if they had cards to show when doctors need to coordinate care. — Ruth, via email

Write to Heloise at P.O. Box 795000, San Antonio, TX 78279-5000, or fax to (210) HEL-OISE. King Features Syndicate Inc.

ENTERTAINMENT

■ A mixture of mud, off-road vehicles and country music served as the backdrop for Dierks Bentley's most recent music video shoot.

The Savannah Morning News reported that Bentley shot part of the video Sunday at the Big Nasty ATV/Motocross Park near Bloomingdale, Ga.

Cindy Howze, who owns the Big Nasty with her husband, said people began showing up around 7:30 a.m. to be a part of the events. Some came to go "mudding" like always. Others came to participate in the video shoot for Bentley's song "5-1-5-0."

■ Mariah Carey and Nick Cannon say "I do" — again.

A publicist for the pair said they renewed their vows Friday at the Eiffel Tower in Paris, France.

Spokeswoman Cindi Berger said the couple celebrated with an "intimate ceremony after a romantic dinner at the beautiful Jules Verne restaurant" just after midnight local time.

Carey, 42, and Cannon, 31, married in the Bahamas in 2008 after a whirlwind romance that began just months earlier. Carey gave birth to their twins, son and daughter Moroccan and Monroe, last April.

IN THE STARS

HAPPY BIRTHDAY: Put your best foot forward. Embark on new ventures and participate in activities that interest you. Get involved in the lives of individuals who are much younger or older. The lessons you learn will help you maneuver into an excellent position that has plenty of room for growth and will bring you great satisfaction. Your numbers are 6, 17, 22, 27, 30, 34, 43.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Make personal changes that better suit your current situation. A conservative approach to business will help you secure your position. Put pressure on someone who could potentially ruin your plans if a contribution isn't made on time.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Mix business with pleasure. Showing your playful side will help build better relationships and ensure that you get the help you require when you need it. Orchestrate a face-to-face conversation if an important deal begins to teeter.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Emotions will be difficult to control, posing a personal problem. Listen to complaints and observe the situation before taking steps to rectify the problem. You aren't likely to get more than one chance, making your timing and choices crucial.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Do your best to follow through with your plans. Don't allow anyone to make you feel self-conscious about your capabilities. Rely on experience and the information you have gathered, and you will reach your destination.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Don't complain about your job or someone will think you aren't right for the position. You have to protect what you've got, not throw it all away. Hard work, dedication and showing interest will all contribute to a successful future.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You've got all the right moves, so don't hesitate to follow through with your plans. A lack of confidence is the only thing standing in your way. Share your thoughts and you will realize that you have something worthwhile to present.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Personal changes will be easier than anticipated if you sign up for a self-help course. Love is on the rise, and talking about your plans with your partner or taking part in activities conducive to meeting someone new will pay off.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Concentrate on money matters and professional gains. Letting emotions get in the way of your advancement will lead to regrets in the future. You may have to work with someone you don't trust to get what you want.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Don't start something you cannot finish. A problem with relatives or friends will occur if you are too aggressive. Keeping an open mind and letting others voice an opinion will make it easier to get others to accept your ideas.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You can wheel and deal all you want. Someone is likely to make last-minute changes that will upset your plans. Spend more time securing your position by working on projects that don't require the help of others. Success will be your payoff.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You'll have to put up with interference. Listen to what's being suggested and combine it with what you feel works for you. At the end of the day, accomplishing what you set out to do will be the bottom line.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Don't let anger lead to a mistake you'll regret. Do what you can to reach your goals without being sidetracked by what others want you to do. Someone from your past will offer you an opportunity you cannot refuse.
